THE GENTLER SEX.

Mrs. M. Elizabeth Fry was today awarded a verdict of $100 by the jury in the Supreme Court against Mrs. Minnie H. Scanlon. Mrs. Scanlon sold Mrs. Fry some medicine to remove her freckles. The freckles were removed but Mrs. Fry said the operation hurt. Mrs. Scanlon contended that Mrs. Fry did not follow instructions. Binghamton Press.

Oh, we women! How we continually put ourselves in positions to catch every shaft of ridicule the other sex launches at us! That was my thought while I waited for my turn at the post-office window, held for ten full minutes by a woman who planted her elbows on the sill, thus barring out anybody who might feel inclined to hurry matters. I lost a train, a man missed the mail that insured the delivery of his Christmas gift, and a woman turned away with a despairing sigh and the remark that she must return to work as her noon hour had passed. The poor man peered behind the window was twice called to an important duty by his superior before he had disposed of the author of everybody's trouble. The woman's errand was this: She had an awkward parcel she wished to send some distance, and was undecided between the mail and express. Perhaps the express office had been attacked in a similar fashion, but at all events, she listened to a careful explanation of the rules of the government and the necessity of reaching the package to conform with the four-pound limit. She was advised to use the express, as the company had facilities for such business and were responsible for the safe delivery of all parcels. Then she asked questions covering all the ground once gone over and meditated at length between them. The clerk's patience was remarkable, but I would dislike to repeat to her scraps of conversation I overheard after she had taken her departure without a word of thanks to the man or an apology for distressing others. A disgusted man remarked on the stupidity of the sex and wondered how men who were forced to deal, to any extent, with women managed to live out half their days. I felt no resentment at the speech. I even felt a bit guilty for, being a woman, I probably have my share of the faults of the sex. I recovered my composure later on, when I saw three women in succession attempt to pass by me, pushing the pincers for the broad piece of metal placed as a marker on the door. Minneapolis Tribune.

SUPERIOR PEOPLE.

[Prof. Camille Flammarion says that the inhabitants of Mars are millions of years in advance of the people of the earth in intellectual development.] They are very superior people in Mars. Of this there can be any doubt. Astronomers find when they study the stars. Unmistakable proof of a culture that is theirs, whenever that planet's about. Though widely they've traveled, Each saint is graven in the sky. By the bright, brainy people of Mars.

It's lucky for us that we're stationed down here. On this second-rate planet to dwell. So select are the people of Mars, I fear, At our poor attainments they'd sneer and jeer. Each Martian's a thorough-paced swell. From Mars with a scoff, They'd push us straight off, Caring nothing at all where we fell.

What lot of people too good for this earth— What if we should send them to Mars? Accepting their views of their personal worth, They'd get a warm welcome and life would be mirth. Beer and skittles and swift motor As soon as they got Hooked up with that lot Of superior folk in the stars. —Chicago News.

ANOTHER MASSACRE FEARED.

Two Bombs Hurled at Russian Governor May Lead to Fresh Slaughter.

Chernigov, Russia, Jan. 16.—There is an anti-Semitic agitation here, and fears are expressed of massacre in retaliation for the attack by Jews on the governor.

Two bombs were hurled at this official, Gen. Khovostoff, Sunday, as he was driving home from the cathedral. The governor was seriously and his wife slightly injured.

HOUSE "REBELS" ARE GAINING

Strong Force Against Statehood Programme.

OPPOSITION NOW LOUD

Plans for Compromise Result in Failure — Babcock, Leader of the "Insurgents," Explains Position.

Washington, Jan. 16.—All proposed compromises on the Philippine tariff bill and on the joint statehood bill were declared off yesterday. Secretary Taft early in the day communicated with the ways and means committee of the House and said he would not see the Philippine bill fall to accept a compromise amendment fixing a limitation on the amount of sugar to be imported from the islands on or after a certain date. It was explained that the chief object of the bill is to induce American capital interests to invest in sugar-producing lands in the Philippines and to place any limitations on importations in the bill would discourage such investments. The new week began with an excellent chance for a fight to a finish on the part of the insurgents. No one doubts that the Philippine bill will pass the House, but there is still much doubt about the fate of the statehood bill. The House leaders decided yesterday that the statehood bill shall not be brought up this week. If the speaker feels he can command votes enough to pass the bill it may be brought before the House next week. It is pretty well understood that if the bill should be brought to a vote today the insurgents and the Democrats would win. Opposition in the House to joint statehood seems to be gaining ground and insurgents are growing bolder in their denunciation of the proposed administration measure. Representative Babcock of Wisconsin, the leader of the "insurrection," and his lieutenants say their movement has gained strength since Saturday. The republican insurgents on both the Philippine tariff and on the joint statehood measures are firmly lined up against the administration policy and insist that they will not weaken under fire.

BABCOCK DENIES PAPER CHARGES.

Declares Had No Desire to Be Chairman of Committee on Appropriations.

Washington, Jan. 16.—When the House met at eleven o'clock yesterday, Mr. Babcock at once took the floor on a question of personal privilege. He based this on a statement in a local newspaper entitled: "How Came Babcock to His Office?" which gave as a reason for his opposition to joining Arizona and New Mexico as one state his pique at not being single chairman of the appropriations committee. Mr. Payne, the Republican floor leader, said while he did not object to this insinuation, he did not want a precedent made of this case, as he did not regard the story as raising a question of personal privilege. "If, when a member is totally misrepresented, if that is not a matter of personal privilege, I don't know what is," replied Mr. Babcock, with some feeling. Speaker Cannon remarked that as no objection had been made he was not called upon to pass upon the question. "The gentleman will proceed," he said.

The statement, Mr. Babcock, repeated, totally misrepresented him, and he also believed the so-called "stalwarts" who he understood meant the House organization. He had, he said, never been an applicant for the chairmanship of the appropriations committee. He had not wanted that chairmanship and had it been tendered him he should have declined it, as I did not feel that under the circumstances I could have filled it to the satisfaction of the House. As to statehood, Mr. Babcock said he had always opposed joining Arizona and New Mexico as one state. As to tariff views, Mr. Babcock said they had not changed. He presented a resolution adopted by the Wisconsin delegation in Congress, Jan. 15, 1905, in favor of the revision, and said he would bring a party man to the party programme, he still adhered to the opinion that revision should be had. When Mr. Babcock had concluded several of his colleagues applauded.

NO SALARY FROM CLOVER LEAF.

Chairman Shouts Notifies the Senate Canal Committee.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Theodore P. Shonts, chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission, has notified the Senate Canal Committee that he is no longer receiving a salary from the Clover Leaf Railroad Company. This removes one of the causes of criticism of Mr. Shonts, and it may have a marked effect in the direction of the member of the Canal Commission.

DOCTOR CURED OF ECZEMA

Maryland Physician Cures Himself of Eczema with Cuticura Remedies. Prescribes Them and Has Cured Many Cases Where Other Formulas Have Failed — Dr. Fisher Says:

CUTICURA REMEDIES POSSESS TRUE MERIT

"My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies, and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for sixteen years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. You are at liberty to publish this letter, or any part of it. I remain, very truly yours, G. M. Fisher, M. D., Big Pool, Md., May 24, 1905."

BURLINGTON SCHOOL REPORT.

There Are About 3,500 Children Enrolled in the Schools.

Burlington, Jan. 16.—According to the annual report of H. O. Wheeler, superintendent of public schools, the total number of children enrolled in the schools for the year 1905 was 3,500. The gain of nearly 100 over the total enrollment in 1904 and is about 66 percent of the total number of children in the city under the age of eighteen years.

The school attendance according to the three terms gives a total of 2,400 for the winter term, 2,247 for the spring term and 2,581 for the fall term, making gains over the terms of 1904 of 91, 381 and 110, respectively.

During 1904 the number of children in the city was as follows: Between the ages of five and eight, 1,036; eight and fifteen, 2,453; fifteen and eighteen, 247; number of boys, 2,182; girls, 2,295.

The number of children attending school according to this standard was as follows: Under five, 173; between the ages of five and eight, 771; eight and fifteen, 1,399; fifteen and eighteen, 247; number of boys, 1,183; girls, 1,422.

During the year teachers were employed as follows: Male, seven; female, 77; graduates of state normal schools, 15; college graduates, 18; high school and academy graduates, 46.

A Grim Tragedy

is daily enacted in thousands of homes as death claims in each one another victim of consumption or pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated the tragedy is averted. F. G. LICENSE SYSTEM BENEFICIAL.

Change from Prohibition Has Been Attended with Good Results.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 16.—In their annual report to the state council, just made public, the state board of liquor license commissioners say: "The local option license system has been on trial in our state for two years and eight months. In cities and towns voting for license has been a radical change from the previous policy that preceded it. It has yielded a large revenue. The amount received for the entire year ending April 30, 1905, was $393,510. The amount received for the eight months of the current year has been $379,221.

"The selling, delivering or giving away of liquor to minors and to persons, habitual drunkards or blacklisted persons has been made a crime. A violation of the law is cause for revocation of the license and forfeiture of the bond. In towns voting against license the authorities have been able to enforce the prohibition law more effectively than before. Taken as a whole, there has been an improvement in the conditions that formerly existed, and the effect of the adoption of the license system has been beneficial."

WILSON MAY PUBLISH NAMES.

Ruling on Dealers in Adulterated Seed.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Attorney General Moody has rendered an opinion for Secretary Wilson holding that it will be lawful for the head of the Department of Agriculture to publish the names of dealers who sell adulterated seed. The question arose because the Secretary of Agriculture had an impression that if he did publish such names he would be liable for damages in actions for libel.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK

Russian Radicals See No Hope of Peace.

CONSERVATIVES, HOWEVER

Rely on the Douma—Repressionists Decorated by the Czar—Much-Hated M. Durnovo Given Higher Office.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 16.—The note struck by the radical press in reviewing the past year and commenting on the outlook for the new year, is an extremely pessimistic one. These newspapers generally see no prospect of internal peace, but they unite in expressing the hope that 1906 will not end as did 1905, with the spirit of reaction strongly in the ascendant. The Novoye Vremya and the Slovo, on the contrary, look to the Douma to put a seal on the charter of the people's liberties and to restore tranquility to the distracted country. M. Amfiteatroff, one of the most brilliant of Russian journalists, who served a term in exile for his famous political feuilleton, in which he arraigned members of the imperial family as public bandits, and who recently has been living in Rome, in an article on Russian affairs, predicts that the coming year will witness the financial and political bankruptcy of the Government.

The list of the New Year honors is notable for the number of decorations bestowed on the officials associated with the policy of repression. M. Durnovo, whatever he may be as a politician, is a man in public life, has been promoted from acting minister of the interior to minister, thus increasing the influence of the bureaucratic hierarchy. It is significant that in the annual renewal of appointments to the Council of the Empire, and the heads of departments in the Council have been appointed "until the reorganization of that body."

UNEARTH DYNAMITE PLOT.

Russian Ruler Now Cancels His Plan to Attend Ceremonies on the Epiphany.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 16.—For fear of an attempt on his life, the Czar will not come here from Tsarskoe-Selo next Friday to take part in the annual ceremony of "blessing the waters," the festival of the Epiphany.

A great quantity of dynamite, packed in two large boxes, was found hidden deep under the snow at the point where the Neva River is joined by the Ostrova River.

In the boxes were electric batteries and ingenious contrivances to cause an explosion whose force would have been disastrous for a short distance. Short wires ran in three directions from the boxes.

The mine was planted near the Palaces paper manufactory, many of the employees in which were particularly active during the recent strikes and rioting.

The secret police are convinced that had they not found the dynamite it would have been exploded when the Czar, accompanied by his kinsmen and the highest prelates and nobles, approached the Neva for the solemn ceremony of blessing the waters.

MUST CEASE RUNNING WITH THE TENDER AHEAD

The Vermont Railroad Is Censured for the Practice in a Report on a Fatal Accident.

Bennington, Jan. 16.—The practice of running a locomotive with the tender ahead is condemned, and the Rutland railroad is ordered to cease such practice after February 1 in a report filed yesterday by the Vermont railroad commission on the accident at Pike's Crossing, two miles north of this village on August 1. In that affair Harris P. Lindsay, assistant police commissioner of New York, and Miss Evelyn P. Willing of Chicago, his fiancée, were instantly killed while riding in an automobile. In its report the commission also criticizes the action of a chauffeur in approaching the crossing at a speed of 20 miles an hour.

A Story of Woman's Enmity

(Original.)

What a delightful period that when boys and girls are coming of age! Of course to enjoy youth we should have the facilities for doing so. I was at that age a member of a large family, and my father's home was in the country. In summer and during the winter holidays we children, growing up into manhood and womanhood, always had a house full of our young friends.

When I came home from college in my senior year for the winter holidays my sister told me that she had invited her especial friend, Mary Lockwood, for my particular benefit. Sisters at that age wish to be, but are not, matchmakers. Nothing could be devised so well calculated to drive two young people of opposite sex apart as to tell them that they are intended for each other. Mary Lockwood and I quarreled from the first. She soon began to say sharp things to me, and I retorted by indifferently drawing out compliments that were palpably ironical. In our games I would choose her on my side, then sneer at her play. She was very bright and poured out a number of witty sayings that tended to make me a laughingstock. But the most vengeful thing she did during her stay was to step deliberately under the mistletoe when I was nearest to her, thus daring me to kiss her. Egged on by the others, who were all well aware of our feud, I stepped up to her, took her in my arms, and in the scuffle that ensued she bit my cheek.

I got my revenge in this wise: When the furniture was cleared for a dance I stepped up to her and asked her to dance with me. I believed she would refuse, and she did, before the music began. Here was something that I could not let pass. From that time forward I paid no attention to her whatever. This created a damper on our festivities, and my sister begged me to apologize to Mary, but when I asked for what I should ask pardon she had no reply. Matters went on from bad to worse till we dispersed. When Mary Lockwood departed she left me a note apologizing for having refused to dance with me in my own home. If she had given me this before she went we might have parted friends.

After graduation I studied my profession—medicine—in the city in the neighborhood of which we lived and from which our friends had come to visit us. A very select set of young people got together for semi-weekly dances, and Mary Lockwood was among them. I was delighted when a friend of mine asked me to join the "Rug Beaters," as they called themselves, and consented. I heard nothing more of the matter till spring, then learned that Mary Lockwood had "blackballed" me.

I began to feel what it is to have the enmity of a woman. Till I learned of this serious overt act I did not consider our quarrel of any importance, but now I did not dare to make any move where she could stab me. My most intimate friends were members of the "Rug Beaters," and I would not join any other club, so my winter's amusement was spoiled.

One day while I was listening to a lecture at the medical school on nerve structures the professor said: "Women are especially subject to nerve tension. Men fight each other for many different causes; women quarrel from nervous strain and are more apt to have paroxysms of anger with those they like than those to whom they are indifferent." I was surprised that a physician should not know what I knew by actual experience.

One evening at a ball I saw my enemy among the throng. I had never seen her before in a ball dress and was surprised at her queenly appearance. I noticed, however, that there was a look in her eyes. It quite disarmed my just indignation at her having injured me. I could not conceive of a man thus doing so, and the woman's act seemed to me all the baser that she had been my sister's guest. Nevertheless I pitied her. While I was studying her face she turned toward me. She looked away at once and with an expression much the same as I had been used to when we were together. I determined to tell her what I thought of her keeping me out of the "Rug Beaters" and, going up to her, bade her good evening. I was received about as I had expected and, giving her my arm, took her out of the throng. Seated in a cozy nook unobserved, I spoke to her of my sister's introducing us and her good intentions in doing so. Then I pictured how the matter might have turned out had we not begun a useless and harmful quarrel. I spoke regretfully of my own shortcomings and was about to enter upon informing her that I knew she had turned an enemy in my path to injure me when—her head was turned from me so I could not see her face—I felt her hand laid on mine. Bending forward, I saw tears in her eyes.

I could not now repeat the steps by which we were in a few moments—if we were not instantly—converted from enemies to lovers. But in this I must speak for myself, for she confessed that she had loved me from even before she had seen me, when my sister had sent her my picture—a picture that she had treasured ever since. Finding that acts which I had supposed sprang from hate really had sprung from love caused me a marvelous revelation. It was as if a heavy laden, dank wind had suddenly changed to one full of invigorating ozone.

I am at present lecturing at the medical college at which I studied. I have embodied in one of my lectures the words I pronounced then. I did not know how true I should find them.

ALFRED L. OGELSBY.

Handsome Parcel.

Farrell, the most extraordinary man since the time of the first seven prodigal sons, died at the age of thirty-seven from a cold contracted by being locked out of the house by his terminally wife. He was popularly said to be the handsomest man in London.

Treating Wrong Disease.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from dizziness or nervous prostration, another with pain, here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their family doctors, and in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages this practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest, earthy boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuritis, hysteria, spasms, chorea, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

ROUGH ON THE ASTORS.

Jim Lee Can't Return Their Call Because He's in Jail.

New York, Jan. 16.—Jim Lee, proprietor of a Wall Street establishment, will be compelled to commit a terrible breach of Chinese etiquette. He was visited last Friday night by Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor on their slumming trip, and properly demanded that the call be returned.

But Mr. Lee delayed overlong the social obligation. He was summoned Sunday on a charge of running an opium joint, and in the Tombs court yesterday was held in $300 bail for examination.

SWEDEN HAS DEFICIT.

King Oscar Opens the Riksdag; Millions for Defense.

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 16.—King Oscar opened the session of the new Riksdag yesterday. The speech from the throne was almost entirely concerned with internal matters. The budget was subsequently introduced, being the first under the new conditions. It shows a deficit of nearly $2,750,000, which will be met by an income tax and new stamp duties. About $13,652,000 is demanded for the national debt.

The expenditure includes $250,000 for expenses connected with the dissolution of the union.
